

Jennifer C. Love, PhD, D-ABFA, serves as the Chief Science Officer at the DC Department of Forensic Sciences. Previously, she served as a Physical Scientist in the Office of Investigative and Forensic Sciences at U.S. Department of Justice's National Institute of Justice (NIJ) in Washington, DC. In that position, she managed the NIJ Forensic Technology Center of Excellence program and served as the contract officer representative for the National Missing and Unidentified Persons System (NamUs). Prior to taking the position with NIJ, Dr. Love served as the Forensic Anthropologist for the District of Columbia Office of the Chief Medical Examiner in Washington, DC, and Forensic Anthropology Director with the Harris County Institute of Forensic Sciences in Houston, TX. She is board-certified by the American Board of Forensic Anthropology and previously served as the organization's vice president. She is a fellow of the American Academy of Forensic Sciences and has served on the NIST OSAC Forensic Anthropology Subcommittee. Dr. Love is the awardee of several state and federal research grants and has published in several peer-reviewed scientific journals.