

Matt Barrett

Matt Barrett has spent the last 20+ years of his career serving as an executive, a Fortune 100 consultant, and a federal employee. He is currently the Program Manager for the NIST Cybersecurity Framework, or simply the “Framework.” He leads this program through planning, team oversight and coordination, and outreach to industry and federal organizations. Matt works through those relationships to provide perspective and guidance, as well as gather input on the use and evolution of the Framework.
