

A Typical FP 'Barrel'

The colored interior structure is a chromophore, the portion of the molecule responsible for emitting color after it is illuminated.